FIERCE FIGHTING: A Marine sprints into position during a gunbattle with Taliban fighters in Helmand province Sunday. A Taliban attack in Nuristan province near Pakistan on Saturday killed eight U.S. troops.

Taliban fighters target U.S., Afghan outposts near Pakistan border

KABUL | Hundreds of insurgents armed with automatic rifles and rocket-propelled grenades stormed a pair of remote outposts near the Pakistan border, killing eight U.S. soldiers and capturing more than 20 Afghan security troops in the deadliest assault against U.S. forces in more than a year, military officials said Sunday.

BACKSTORY

Nuristan province was a key staging area for Arab militants who fought alongside Afghan warriors during the U.S.-backed war against the Soviets in the 1980s. It is one of the few parts of South Asia where Muslims follow the hardline Wahhabi sect of Islam.

The fierce gun-battle, which erupted at dawn Saturday in the Kamdesh district of mountainous Nuristan province and raged throughout the day, is likely to fuel the debate in Washington over the direction of the troubled eight-year war.

It was the heaviest U.S. loss of life in a single battle since July 2008, when nine American soldiers were killed in a raid on an outpost in Wanat in the same province.

The Taliban claimed responsibility for the attack. NATO spokesman Brig. Gen. Eric Tremblay said the assailants included a mix of "tribal militias," Taliban and fighters loyal to Sirajudin Haqqani, an al-Qaeda-linked militant based in sanctuaries in the tribal areas of Pakistan near the Afghan border. Teen Boys Pray for Mustard Gas Attack

A bra that converts into two gas masks — one for the wearer, one for a friend — was among this year’s winners of the Ig Nobel awards, Harvard’s annual tribute to goofy scientific research. “You have to be prepared all the time, at any place, at any moment, and practically every woman wears a bra,” said inventor Dr. Elena Bodnar, noting that a bra cup, no matter what size, is the perfect shape to fit over the human mouth and nose. ‘Also, I Only Went Out With You on a Dare’

A Detroit man has been sentenced to at least two years in prison for stealing a woman’s car after skipping out on the check during their first date. Police say Terrance McCoy dined with the woman on April 24 at a restaurant in Ferndale. McCoy said he forgot his wallet in her car and asked for the keys. Police say McCoy then took off in the car. McCoy’s defense attorney says McCoy is a “very nice man who made a bad decision.” (AP) quarter of the deaths that occur in the month after birth are the consequence of preterm birth.

Those are among the findings of a new study of the burden of preterm birth by the World Health Organization and the March of Dimes. In all, about 12.9 million babies are born too soon each year, representing 9.6 percent of all births. Of the 4 million deaths that occur soon after birth each year, 28 percent are attributable to prematurity.

Preterm birth is defined as birth before 37 weeks of gestation. A normal pregnancy lasts 40 weeks. Rates and causes of preterm birth differ widely by region.

Adviser: Afghanistan Isn't Falling

Obama official says al-Qaeda's presence in country is minimal

WASHINGTON | A top U.S. commander's public plea for more troops in Afghanistan prompted a mild rebuke Sunday from the White House national security adviser, as the administration heads into a second week of intensive negotiations over its evolving Afghan strategy.

Retired general James Jones said that decisions about how best to stabilize Afghanistan must extend beyond troop levels to development and governance. And the request by Army Gen. Stanley McChrystal, the top U.S. commander in Afghanistan, for up to 40,000 more troops is just one of three key elements advisers must consider as they meet this week to plot the way ahead.

He added that it is "better for military advice to come up through the chain of command," rather than off a public stage, referring to McChrystal's speech in London last week in which he made a case for more troops. But Jones also beat back suggestions that the open campaign could jeopardize the general's job.

McChrystal "is in it for the long haul," Jones said. "I don't think this is an issue."

Jones said Afghanistan is not in imminent danger of falling to the Taliban, and he downplayed fears that the insurgency could set up a renewed sanctuary for al-Qaeda.

"Afghanistan is not in imminent danger of falling," Jones said. "The al-Qaeda presence is very diminished. The maximum estimate is less than 100 operating in the country, no bases, no ability to launch attacks on either us or our allies." LOLITA C. BALDOR (AP)

FAST FOOD Fried Into a Rage Authorities in Norwell, Mass., say a couple upset over the slowness of their Kentucky Fried Chicken order assaulted a man who asked them to stop yelling profanities for the sake of children in line. The couple were arrested Thursday after witnesses told police the couple beat the man as he was leaving the restaurant. Police say 31-year-old Jared Garfagna of Marshfield, Mass., punched the man in the head, and then Garfagna's girlfriend, 24-year-old Sara Mohn, kicked the man. The victim had cuts on his eyelid and wrists. (AP)

A Good Job Is Hard to Fill

Organizations that are hiring can't find qualified applicants

In a brutal job market, here's a task that might sound easy: Fill jobs in nursing, engineering and energy research that pay $55,000 to $60,000, plus benefits.

Yet even with 15 million people hunting for work, even with the unemployment rate nearing 10 percent, some employers can't find enough qualified people for good-paying career jobs.

Ask Steve Jones, a hospital recruiter in Indianapolis who's struggling to find qualified nurses, pharmacists and MRI technicians. Or Ed Baker, who's looking to hire at a U.S. Energy Department research lab in Richland, Wash., for jobs that pay $60,000 each.

Economists say the main problem is a mismatch between available work and people qualified to do it. Millions of jobs with attractive pay and benefits that once drew legions of workers to the auto industry, construction, Wall Street and other sectors are gone, probably for good. And those who lost those jobs generally lack the right experience for new positions popping up in health care, energy and engineering.

Steve Jones reads through an application in his office at Clarian Health's Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis. Jones is struggling to fill 228 open positions at Clarian.

Many unemployed Americans lack the right skills for jobs that are opening up.

The mismatch between job opening and job seeker is likely to persist even as the economy strengthens and begins to add jobs.

It also will make it harder for the unemployment rate to drop down to a healthier level.

"Workers are going to have to find not just a new company, but a new industry," said Sophia Koropecyk, managing director of Moody's Economy.com. "A 50-year-old guy who has been screwing bolts into the side of a car panel is not going to be able to become a health care administrator overnight." CHRISTOPHER LEONARD (AP)

Woman: Treasure Hunt Was Prank

ST. LOUIS | An Illinois woman who set out on a treasure hunt for buried gold coins after finding a cryptic note in an antique rocking chair may have been the victim of a prolific prankster who died more than 30 years ago.

With the help of a donated backhoe, Patty Henken recently tore up a vacant lot in Springfield, Ill., where a typewritten note signed by "Chauncey Wolcott" — found in an old chair — suggested she would find a chest containing more than $250 in U.S. gold coins. The dig turned up nothing but bricks and old bottles.

An Iowa woman who read news accounts of the hunt said she knows Wolcott's true identity: John "Jay" Slaven, a notorious practical joker and coin collector who often used a typewriter in his pranks. (AP)

He said he attempted to kiss her to reconcile and she bit his tongue, causing it to bleed. (AP)

Socialists Triumph in Greek Vote

Conservative PM resigns after party's worst showing ever

ATHENS, GREECE | Greece's Socialists trounced the governing conservatives in a landslide election Sunday, with voters angered by scandals and a faltering economy ousting Prime Minister Costas Karamanlis halfway through his second term.

Humbled by his New Democracy party's worst electoral performance ever, Karamanlis, 53, resigned as its leader and said a new chief is needed for the party founded by his late uncle Constantine Karamanlis 35 years ago.

George Papandreou, 57, now follows in the footsteps of his father, Andreas Papandreou, who founded his Panhellenic Socialist Movement party, or PASOK, and grandfather and namesake George Papandreou, both of whom served several terms as prime ministers.

"We bear a great responsibility to change the course of the country. ... We know that we can make it," Papandreou, a former foreign minister, told jubilant supporters lighting flares and waving PASOK flags depicting the party's symbol of a green rising sun outside his party headquarters in Athens.

Results from 60.67 percent of votes counted showed PASOK winning with 43.72 percent, compared to 34.74 percent for New Democracy. The result gives PASOK a comfortable majority of about 159 seats in the 300-member parliament, bringing the party back to power after five years of conservative governance.

Papandreou's victory, along with a recent election win by socialists in Portugal, bucks a European trend that has seen a conservative surge in the powerhouse economies, including in Germany, where Chancellor Angela Merkel won re-election last week.

"This is a historic victory for PASOK, which means great responsibility for us," former minister Evangelos Venizelos said.

Japanese Ex-Official Is Dead

Former minister's body found at home; foul play is ruled out

TOKYO | A former Japanese finance minister who stepped down after appearing to be drunk at an overseas news conference was found dead in his home Sunday, police said, ruling out foul play.

Shoichi Nakagawa was lying face down in bed when his wife found him in their Tokyo home, a spokesman for the Tokyo Metropolitan Police Department said on condition of anonymity due to police policy.

Investigators have ruled out foul play because the room was undisturbed, and they were downplaying the likelihood of suicide. Determining a cause of death will likely "take some time," the spokesman said, adding that an autopsy will be conducted.

The 56-year-old Nakagawa caused an uproar when he appeared to be intoxicated at a news conference during a meeting of Group of Seven financial leaders in Rome in February. News programs repeatedly played footage of his slurring his speech and looking sleepy. TOMOKO A. HOSAKA (AP) of South America's brutal military regimes and led to her forced exile in Europe, died Sunday, her family said. She was 74.

Her remains lay in state at the National Congress, where thousands of people lined up to pay respects to one of the region's most iconic voices.

"She was the best ambassador the country ever had," said Clara Suarez, 63, holding white flowers outside the Congress.

Sosa had been in the hospital for more than two weeks with liver problems and had since been suffering from progressive kidney failure and cardiac arrest.

Sosa's rise to stardom began at 15, when she entered a radio contest and won a two-month contract with the broadcaster.

By the 1970s, she was recognized as one of South America's troubadours who gave rise to the "nuevo cancionero" (New Songbook) movement — singers who mixed leftist politics with musings critical of the ruling juntas.

In 1979, a year after being widowed by her second husband, Sosa was detained along with an audience of about 200 students while singing in La Plata, a university city hit hard by military rule. She was freed 18 hours later under international pressure and after paying a $1,000 fine, but was forced to leave Argentina until 1982.

Sosa recorded more than 70 albums; the latest, a double CD titled "Cantora 1" and "Cantora 2," is a collection of folkloric classics performed with contemporary Latin American and Spanish stars such as Shakira, Fito Paez, Julieta Venegas and Lila Downs.

DNC Adds $1M to Deeds' Coffers

Donation puts party commitment for Va. governor race at $6M

The Democratic National Committee will announce Monday that it is donating another $1 million and additional in-kind contributions to Virginia gubernatorial candidate Creigh Deeds.

That brings the DNC commitment in Virginia to more than $6 million — roughly equal to the Republican National Committee's pledge of $7 million to aid candidate Bob McDonnell.

The DNC, chaired by Gov. Tim Kaine, made the decision to donate more money and other resources to Deeds after seeing McDonnell's lead narrow considerably in recent weeks.

"We see a real strong opportunity here," said Brad Woodhouse, DNC communications director. "We're real pleased with the direction of the race."

"We're thrilled with the additional commitment from Governor Kaine and the DNC," said

Deeds

Mo Elleithee, a senior adviser to the Deeds campaign. "The fact that they are digging so deep shows that they're fully committed to Creigh and to this race, and we are very appreciative of their support."

As The Post reported last week, McDonnell and his supporters are outspending Deeds and his backers nearly 2-to-1 on TV ads.

Some Democrats blame that on the Democratic Governors Association's decision to air more than $3 million in ads in the spring before Deeds became his party's nominee, while the Republican Governors Association waited to air $4 million worth of ads in the final two months of the race.

D.C. School Oversight May EaseImproved service may lead to less control of special-ed program

A U.S. District Court judge said Friday that he might reduce federal oversight of the District's special education system "in the next year" because officials have improved the speed at which complaints are resolved about educational services for students. But he said substantial concerns remain.

Judge Paul L. Friedman said the most recent evaluation of the special education program was "extremely thorough, and, in many aspects, it's a very positive evaluation." Still, Friedman said, the District schools and the state superintendent will have to improve more before he reduces federal oversight of the system.

During the 2008-09 school year, D.C. schools and the state superintendent's office devoted more staff members and resources to special education and reduced the backlog of cases in which hearing decisions had not been implemented. JENNA JOHNSON AND MICHAEL BIRNBAUM (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Va. Tech Police Charge Student in Racial Threats Case

BLACKSBURG, VA. | Virginia Tech police have filed charges against a student in connection with racial slurs, swastikas and other threats found on walls in university buildings. Maj. Gene Deisinger said Friday that four misdemeanor counts of vandalism have been filed against 19-year-old Samuel Adams Purtell of Blacksburg.

Police have banned Purtell from campus, and Deisinger says he is out of the community. Police say they began receiving reports of threatening postings on bathroom walls across campus in August.

The graffiti in six buildings also included references to Adolf Hitler and Seung-Hui Cho, who killed 32 people on campus and himself in 2007. (AP)

Cupholders Optional

Purchasing a stroller can break the bank if you aren't focused on essential features

NEW YORK | Choosing a stroller, when it can cost anywhere from $30 to $1,200 and more, can be as daunting as buying a car. Do you need hand brakes, or will foot stops suffice? How big a seat? And, of course, how many cupholders?

Some families end up buying two or even three strollers before they find one they like. Here are practical steps to cut the uncertainty and save money.

Start With You

Match the stroller to your lifestyle, recommends Alan Fields, co-author of "Baby Bargains." Many feature-loaded strollers will lose their appeal the first time you're forced to change plans because you can't fit it onto the subway.

Generally, urbanites will want a lightweight and compact buggy for navigating congested sidewalks and public transit, while suburbanites may prefer a "travel system" — a stroller that comes with an infant car seat.

These days, buying a new stroller can be as daunting as buying a new automobile.

Testing, Testing

Just as you would test-drive a car, you should try strollers in real-life situations, especially when buying one used. Wear flip-flops to go shopping so you can test whether the foot brakes require hard shoes to set and release. And check that the stroller slips easily into your car's trunk.

Above all, because putting down the baby is sometimes out of the question, a stroller that takes two hands to unfold should be out of the question.

Accessorize at Your Peril

If you're easily seduced by accessories, the array of cupholders, sunshades and food trays available on some strollers may be dangerous to your wallet. Figure out — before you get to the store — which are truly beneficial and which you and your baby can live without or add on later. MICHELLE CHAPMAN (AP)

PERSONAL FINANCE

RETIREMENT

When you reach 70 1/2 and you have IRAs or certain other tax-deferred retirement accounts, the IRS requires you to take out some of the money to begin paying the taxes. Failure to make a mandated withdrawal, called a required minimum distribution, or RMD, carries a tax penalty of 50 percent on the amount to be taken out.

Because many accounts were hit hard by the drop in the stock market over the past year, the government approved a one-year waiver of the withdrawal requirement. Here are three questions about required minimum distributions and answers from the IRS.

1 How does the 2009 RMD waiver affect someone who turns 70 1/2 this year?

That person does not have to take money out of his or her account to pay the taxes, which would have been required if the law had not passed. The waiver does not change RMDs required for 2010, which means the account owner who turned 70 1/2 this year is required to take a required distribution by Dec. 31, 2010.

2 Can someone who has several retirement accounts just withdraw the required amount from one account?

An IRA owner must calculate the RMD separately for each account but can withdraw the total amount from one or more of the IRAs.

3 What happens if a person does not take a required distribution by the IRS deadline?

If an account owner fails to take out a required distribution or doesn't take out the full required amount by the deadline, the amount not withdrawn is taxed at 50 percent. The account owner must file IRS Form 5329, Additional Taxes on Qualified Plans and Other Tax-Favored Accounts, with the federal tax return for the year in which the full amount of the RMD was not taken. Redskins Get It Half-Right vs. Bucs

Four-turnover outing is just good enough to even record at 2-2

REDSKINS | Within the first two minutes, the Washington Redskins had given up two sacks and lost a fumble.

They had also allowed a quarterback making his first NFL start to throw for a touchdown on his first pass of the game.

By halftime, they were down 10 to a winless team, and Jason Campbell had thrown two interceptions.

Forget all that talk about whether Jim Zorn would last the season. For a while, one had to wonder whether the booing fans would allow the coach, his quarterback and the rest of the team back on the field for the start of the second half.

Spurred by an interception by DeAngelo Hall, the Redskins found some of the energy, life and momentum that had been missing all season. They rallied to score on three straight possessions in the third quarter Sunday and beat the Tampa Bay Buccaneers 16-13.

"At halftime, I was, like, 'If we don't pull this one out, I don't know what I'm going to do on Monday,'" Campbell said. "I might as well hibernate."

It was another narrow win over a bad team, much like the 9-7 ugly result against the St. Louis Rams that felt more like a loss two weeks ago.

But Washington (2-2) nevertheless has a .500 record, and that doesn't look so bad in print — especially after last week's sky-is-falling loss to the Detroit Lions.

TIDE-TURNER: Cornerback DeAngelo Hall celebrates his interception. The play gave the Redskins momentum in their 16-13 victory on Sunday against the Bucs.

"It's a good feeling because of what we had to go through all week, hearing all those things about losing to Detroit and all that stuff," defensive end Phillip Daniels said. "So, it's a great feeling just to be 2-2."

The loss left Buccaneers rookie coach Raheem Morris still seeking his first NFL victory, but it's not as if Tampa Bay (0-4) didn't BEST CALL: After fielding a punt for only the second time this year, Santana Moss reeled in a 59-yard touchdown pass.

WORST CALL: Jim Zorn decided to go for it on fourth down in the first quarter — again — and not only did the Redskins not convert, Jason Campbell was picked off.

BEST ADJUSTMENT: Maybe it was the boos, but the Redskins' offense finally found its gear in the second half, after a mistake-filled first half.

finally have its chance after three double-digit losses to start the season.

Mike Nugent missed two first-half field goals and was 0 for 4 on the season until making a 37-yarder on the final play of the half, and Aqib Talib's three interceptions lose some of their glow because he was beaten down the right sideline on the 59-yard pass from Campbell to Santana Moss that gave the Redskins the lead for good.

Campbell finished 12 for 22 for 170 yards with two touchdown passes and three interceptions. He claimed it was the first three-interception game of his entire football life — including pee-wee ball.

"It was really frustrating for us all. I started looking at the game plan, wondering, 'What else could go wrong?'" Zorn said. "It was, offensively, like two different halves." JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

Atlanta, which came within two games of the wild-card lead with six remaining, finished with a season-high six-game losing streak. Pujols topped the record set by Boston's Bill Buckner in 1985, flipping to pitcher Joel Pi-neiro covering the bag on a groundout in the fifth. Moss, Brady find old form; Pats hand Ravens their first loss

RAVENS | Just when it appeared that Tom Brady was vulnerable, he hooked up with Randy Moss for the duo's first touchdown of the season, and the defense held the Baltimore Ravens on fourth-down on their last two series as the New England Patriots held on for a 27-21 win Sunday.

After connecting for an NFL record 23 touchdowns in 2007, Brady and Moss have had trouble finding their rhythm as Moss was once again neutralized for much of the afternoon. However, just when the Pats needed the combination most, it produced.

Moss' touchdown made it 24-14 late in the third quarter, but Joe Flacco's 13-yard scoring pass to Willis McGahee cut the deficit to 24-21. Stephen Gostkowski tacked on a 33-yard field goal that gave the Patriots (3-1) a six-point

Palmer Leads Bengals Past Browns

 23 | 20

NFL | The last-minute Cincinnati Bengals pulled one out in extra time.

Shayne Graham's 31-yard field goal — set up by Carson Palmer's 15-yard run on fourth down — on the last play of overtime gave the Bengals a 23-20 win over the winless Cleveland Browns on Sunday.

Not wanting to settle for a tie, Bengals coach Marvin Lewis gambled and decided to go for it on fourth-and-11 from the Cleveland 41 with 1:04 remaining. Palmer dropped back to pass and then tucked it away and scampered up the middle for the first down. Cincinnati ran two plays to get Graham in position, and the kicker, who had an extra point and field goal blocked, drilled it through the uprights.

The Bengals (3-1) have had all four games come down to the wire. The Browns lost their 10th straight dating to last season. (AP)

Two Semi-Serious Men

The brothers Coen talk about their new film, set in a Midwest Jewish community

FILMMAKERS | Joel and Ethan Coen took the title of their latest film, "A Serious Man," from the dialogue they created for the characters in their surreal, darkly affectionate look at a Midwest Jewish community.

In one scene, a rabbi giving a eulogy refers to the deceased as a serious man. Later, the Coens' desperate hero calls himself a serious man as he tries to gain an audience with his synagogue's elusive senior rabbi.

“What do you do when you’ve won an Oscar? When you have power? You do what you want.”

The phrase is the brothers' take on the Yiddish word "mensch," an upright man, someone of substance and decency.

Would the Coens qualify as serious men themselves?

"I don't think either of us would," Ethan Coen, 52, said alongside his 54-year-old brother in anticipation of the film's theatrical release Friday.

"I don't know," Ethan Coen continued. "It's just, you know, the weakness for fart jokes and the like."

FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION: With an Oscar under their belts, Ethan, left, and Joel Coen felt at liberty to make "A Serious Man," a movie that's lacking in mass appeal.

People in Hollywood would differ. The commercial and critical success of their kidnapping-murder story " Fargo," the roots-music romp "O Brother, Where Art Thou?" and their Academy Awards champ, the crime thriller "No Country for Old Men," have established the Coens as very serious men, people of consequence, in Hollywood.

Able to do pretty much whatever they like at this point, the Coens chose to explore a familiar setting, a Midwest Jewish community in the late 1960s, a time and place akin to their own Minnesota upbringing.

With a cast dominated by local newcomers and stage actors generally unfamiliar to film audiences, "A Serious Man" tells the story of physics professor Larry Gopnik (Tony Award-nominated Michael Stuhlbarg) enduring his own trials-of-Job hardships as his home and academic lives unravel.

"We really knew that nobody was going to see this, because it's enough that you're doing a movie about Jews," said Richard Kind, the "Spin City" co-star who is one of the few well-known faces in "A Serious Man," playing Gopnik's freeloading brother.

"And then they say, 'We're going to have no famous people in it. No stars.' It's really just, they're laughing in the face of economics. ... What do you do when you've won an Oscar? When you have power? You do what you want to do."

'Wii Fit Plus' allows players to incorporate a furry workout bud

VIDEO GAME | Pet owners can weigh themselves with their furry friends on "Wii Fit Plus," the follow-up to the top-selling Nintendo workout game.

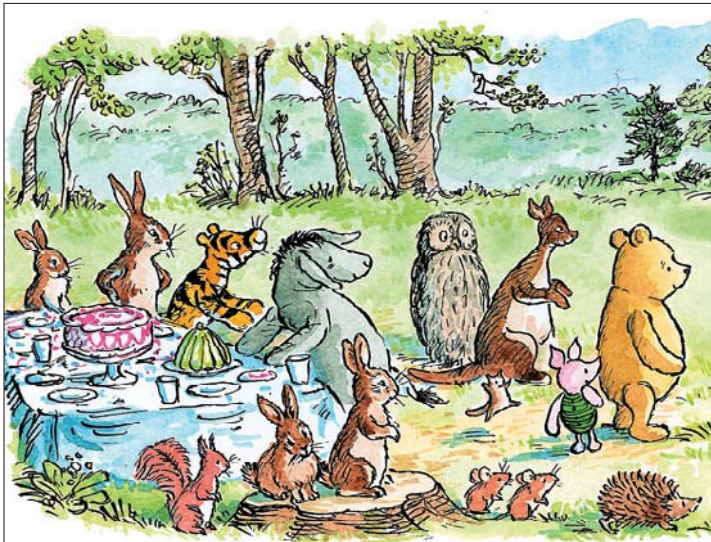

The updated title lets players create avatars of their dogs and cats, enter information such as their pet's birthday, and use the scale-like Wii Balance Board controller to weigh themselves and their pets. The game will then continue to monitor the pet's weight alongside its owner's.

"It's so fun to have a motivator when you're working out," said Katie Cray, Nintendo entertainment and trend marketing manager. "Obviously, if you have a dog, you're probably out there walking your dog and playing with it, and that's exercise in and of itself, so it's nice to have the ability to track the progress of both your dog and yourself."

BOX OFFICE It's Alive! Woody Harrelson's undead horror comedy "Zombieland" opened as the weekend's No. 1 movie with $25 million. The family flick "Cloudy With a Chance of Meatballs" held up well again, slipping from first place to second with $16.7 million. The animated comedy raised its total to $82.4 million. A double-feature reissue of "Toy Story" and "Toy Story 2" in 3-D came in at No. 3 with $12.5 million. The comedy "The Invention of Lying" with Ricky Gervais was No. 4 with $7.4 million. (AP)

MARK BURGESS/TRUSTEES OF THE POOH PROPERTIES

The Hundred Acre Wood gang anxiously awaits the return of Christopher Robin.

The Return of Pooh & Piglet

The creatures of the Hundred Acre Wood pick up right where they left off in 1928

BOOKS | When we left them, Christopher Robin was going away, and things were going to be different.

Now, more than eight decades later, a rumor is sweeping the Hundred Acre Wood: The adventures are about to resume.

The drama unfurls in the first authorized sequel to A.A. Milne's classic children's tales. Called "Return to the Hundred Acre Wood," the book by author David Benedictus goes on sale today and picks up where Milne's "The House at Pooh Corner," first published in 1928, left off.

Pooh purists are surprised anyone thinks there's a need for a new book, arguing that Milne's work should be left to stand alone. But the Trustees of Pooh Properties — which manages the affairs of the estates of Milne and illustrator E.H. Shepard — had long wanted to carry on with the books.

And it wasn't until the trustees read an early version of the story that Benedictus sent them that they felt there was an appropriate successor.

In the illustrations by Mark Burgess, Christopher Robin seems a little older, but Piglet returns to his traditional green outfit, and the bear hasn't dropped any weight. But there is a new addition to the Wood's residents: Lottie the Otter, a stickler for etiquette who is also a keen fan of the very English game of cricket.

Benedictus said it seemed right that a new friend arrive for new adventures. He said he was careful to keep the spirit, ton, and language faithful to Milne — though he didn't feel any particular pressure in taking up where the classic left off.

"If I did it badly, it wouldn't be like I'd destroyed the originals," said Benedictus, a novelist and playwright. "I hoped I could do it well. But, no, I don't think I felt a weighty responsibility — that would have been a bit pompous."

Advertisers Weather Storm

Clients stick with 'Late Show' despite Letterman scandal

TV | Major advertisers are sticking by David Letterman after he tried to head off bad publicity from a failed extortion attempt by revealing that he had sex with female staffers.

Lexus and DirecTV Group Inc. said they were staying put, emphasizing the "Late Show" audience over the host's personal life.

Some media buyers pointed out that the sex, though with subordinates, appeared to be consensual and that he was forthright with his millions of viewers in a 10-minute monologue Thursday night.

Letterman

Besides that, ratings for Thursday were 38 percent higher than the same night a week ago.

"We haven't seen any clients nor do we anticipate any clients looking to move inventory out of the show," said Laura Caraccioli-Davis of Starcom Entertainment.

"We believe that he handled it with full transparency. Consumers are looking for that authenticity and honesty." EMILY FREDRIX AND RYAN NAKASHIMA (AP)

Singer-guitarist Eamon Hamilton is also a lovable smart aleck who once wrote a five-second song called "Cheney" ("Cheney, Cheney, Cheney, Stop Being Such a Dick"). c.p.

2 Father of Evolution

You may not have realized that Charles Darwin had emotional dilemmas and personal dramas, but the ominously titled film "Darwin's Darkest Hour," screening tonight, will let you know all about them. Afterward, you can talk about Darwin — The myth! The man! — with the film's director, producer and screenwriter. Sadly, Darwin himself won't be able to make it. f.z.

Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., will show up at the Sixth and I Historic Synagogue with his biographer, Stuart Weisberg, to talk about how it feels to be a white guy from Massachusetts in politics. Sitcom Imitates Life

Sherri Shepherd is Sherri Shepherd on the new show 'Sherri'

VIEW | Sherri Shepherd stars in "Sherri" (7 p.m., Lifetime), a sitcom about (surprise!) Sherri Shepherd. The actress plays herself, an actress forced by the transient nature of her work on "The View," "30 Rock" and other venues to keep a "day job" that allows her to crack wise with a trio of other women working in her paralegal firm. The debut of "Sherri" coincides with the return of "Rita Rocks" (7:30 p.m., Lifetime), a not-so-stellar sitcom starring Nicole Sullivan as a mother who moonlights in a rock band. Both comedies will take their regular place on the schedule on Tuesdays at 10 p.m. and 10:30 p.m. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

ASPIRATIONS Hour of Power NBC is closing a deal for "Midnighters," a drama project based on Alloy Entertainment's book series. The show revolves around a group of people born at the stroke of midnight who have access to the "25th hour" of each day, which they use to stop crime. This is the second stab at adapting "Midnighters": Four years ago, the WB was working on a pilot. (THE HOLLYWOOD REPORTER)

B.I.O.

BY INVITATION ONLY: UPCOMING WEDDINGS & UNIONS

Alexandra Ansah, Eric Bocian

Alexandra, 27, is an operations manager. Eric, 33, is a CPA. They live in Rosslyn.

- The Main Event: They'll wed in Santa Fe, N.M., Oct. 17 in front of 120 guests.
- How They Met: At Polyesters, an '80s club in D.C.
- First Impressions: "I wondered how my life would be if I married this girl. She was breathtaking." "I thought he was full of himself but really cute."
- First Date: Lauriol Plaza, where she felt like Eric was talking only about himself. Yet they decided on a second date — ice-skating. Afterward, he asked whether he could hold her hand and call her his girlfriend. "I thought to myself, 'First impressions are not always accurate. This guy is not only cute but charming and a bit of a dork — wow, I think I like him!'"

■ How He Proposed: His exact words: "Babe, will you marry me? But we have to talk about finance and kids first." Her response: "Wow, this is such a big ring. Modern Bride would approve. Yes!"

■ Their Song: "I'm Yours" by Jason Mraz.

■ Mmm, Cake: They'll have Bavarian cream spice cake.

■ With Unlimited Funds: "I'm marrying the man of my dreams. No amount of money could make me happier."

"Wow, this is such a big ring. Modern Bride would approve. Yes, yes, yes!"

Dancing the Night Away

When MICHAEL BRASSFIELD (right) spied ROBERT HARRIS from across the room during line dancing lessons, his first thought was "tall, dark and attractive." A friend helped the introduction along, and after a dance, they had a date. Five years later, "we were talking about my 40th birthday and the milestone it was supposed to be," Michael says. "Rob asked what I wanted; I said for us to get married."

For Rob's part, he knew soon after Michael moved in that he wanted them to be together for the rest of their lives. "We work well together, in step together just like on the dance floor. Without choreography, we communicate with each other, adding flourishes to keep life fun."

Michael, 40, is an account manager. Robert, 34, is an IT guy. They live in Alexandria, and their ceremony — and country western-themed reception, complete with line dancing — is Oct. 11.

Elizabeth Do, Adam Nelson

Liz, 23, is an office coordinator. Adam, 24, is a high school teacher. They live in Arlington.

■ The Main Event: An evening candle-lit ceremony Oct. 16 in St. Paul, Minn., with 175 family members and friends in attendance. Liz will walk down the aisle to "She Is Love" by local Virginia band Parachute. Two days later, they'll have a traditional Vietnamese ceremony.

■ How They Met: In college in Duluth, Minn. He asked her to join his softball team, and she agreed — "but I never showed up to a single game!" "I ended up asking her to dinner, and we realized we had a lot in common," Adam says.

■ First Date: Dinner and a movie ("The

"Assuming they were announcing some other Adam, I continued heading to our table."

Kristen Mulligan, David Walters

Kristen, 25, works for the State Department. David, 29, works for the Department of Homeland Security. They live in Arlington.

- The Main Event: They're getting hitched Oct. 11 in Chicago, at Kris' alma mater, Dominican University. They'll have 160 guests at the fall-themed event.
- How They Met: Three years ago, they were in the same graduate class at George Washington University. Kris was in a relationship at the time, so nothing came of their friendship, but "a chance encounter at a campus Starbucks a year later when we were both single quickly led to something serious," David says.

■ First Date: Drinks at the Front Page. They talked for five hours. "At one point, while David was in the bathroom, I texted my girlfriend that I was falling for this guy. I still have the message on my phone!"

■ How He Proposed: Three days before Christmas, at the base of the Lincoln Memorial, the spot where, on one of their early dates, he'd chickened out on kissing her for the first time.

■ Their Song: An acoustic version of "I'm Yours" by Jason Mraz that they both love.

■ Making It Unique: Kris is Catholic but David isn't very religious, so their service will be a blend of a traditional Catholic ceremony and a more secular one.

■ Wedding Jitters: Crying babies. "We've allowed a few of our guests to bring children, and we're hoping that decision doesn't come back to haunt us."

40-Year-Old Virgin").

■ How He Proposed: On the day before Valentine's Day, he surprised her with a dinner cruise. The band mentioned that Adam had a "special announcement." "Assuming that they were announcing some other Adam, I continued heading to our table," Liz says, but he led her to the dance floor and proposed right there.

■ Most-Hated Clothing Item: Her sweater "she insists is long enough to wear as a dress"; his "old-man shoes."

■ Stupidest Fight: Over how much to tip a cabdriver. "I guess I always over-tip," Liz says.

■ With Unlimited Funds: She'd splurge on letterpress invites; he'd hire the Dave Matthews Band for the reception.

World
Habitat Day

OCTOBER 5, 2009

The first Monday of every October is designated as World Habitat Day – a day to call worldwide attention to the dire need for affordable housing for all.

According to the United Nations, more than 100 million people in the world today are homeless. Millions more face a severe housing problem- living without adequate sanitation, with irregular or no electricity supply and without adequate security. Habitat for Humanity would need to build 2,000,000 homes per year for the next fifty years to solve the present worldwide housing crisis. Due to growth trends, at the end of those fifty years, there would still be a need for another 1 billion houses.

Raising awareness and advocating for change are the first steps toward transforming systems that perpetuate the global plague of poverty housing. World Habitat Day serves as an important reminder that everyone must unite to ensure that everyone has a safe, decent place to call home.
